Postoffice Will Be Dedicated On Saturday, July 3

Connally and Jones Are Invited To Speak In Canyon On Date of the Dedication

NEARLY COMPLETE

Work of Finishing, New Sidewalks and Widening of Street Will Be Rapidly Completed

United States Senator Tom Connally and Congressman Marvin Jones have been invited to Canyon to attend the dedication of the new post office building on July 3rd.

W. A. Warren and Clyde Warwick are working with Postmaster Guy Harp in planning a program for the opening of the building.

It is likely that the program will start at 2:00 o'clock on the afternoon of July 3 in order to give ample time for all citizens to inspect the building throughout the remainder of the afternoon. Under ordinary conditions the postoffice closes at 1:00 o'clock on Saturdays. The building will be opened for inspection throughout the afternoon.

The public school band will give a program at the opening of the ceremony.

Several local people will appear on the program.

Postmasters from neighboring towns will be invited to be here for the ceremony, and district postal authorities will come for the ceremony.

Finishing work on the building is now progressing very rapidly. The general contractors, Lunberg & Richter, expect to complete their work about the 29th of this month. The firm was authorized this week to build a new sidewalk on the south side of the building, replacing the old broken up sidewalk which was overlooked in planning the new building.

With the exception of the boxes, all of the furniture for the office has arrived.

All citizens of Canyon will be urged to assist in the program in dedicating the new building, and all will be cordially invited to inspect the entire building and plant on the opening day.

Bank Night Outlawed by Decision Court of Appeals

Bank Night has been outlawed in Texas by a decision of the Court of Criminal Appeals. The decision classified this form of drawing as a lottery. The decision includes all kinds of drawing, whether for cash or merchandise, which may be given away either by individuals or communities.

Practically all theatres in the state announced immediately after the decision that bank nights would be abandoned. Arrests have been made during the past week of a number of owners who continued the drawings.

W. J. Wooten, owner of the Olympic Theatre, announced Monday that no more drawings would be held so long as this feature was so construed by the courts.

46 New Exhibit Cases Added to P.-P.H.S. Museum

Forty-six exhibit cases have just been added to the equipment of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum. The cases which are dust proof and provided with locks were constructed in the industrial arts department of the West Texas State Teachers College under the direction of Professor J. A. Gillis.

A great number of interesting materials which have not been seen by the public will be put on display in the new cases.

Dr. and Mrs. L. F. Sheffy visited at the home of his brother in Dimmitt Sunday.

Governor Allred Approves All Items of Appropriation Bill: New Positions and Increased Salaries

Governor Allred has approved the entire appropriation bill for educational institutions without eliminating any items.

The appropriation for W. T. for the two years amounts to $477,843.76. The bill allows $246,421.88 for the year opening Sept. 1st and $231,421.88 for the second year.

$15,000.00 was approved for the erection of a Home Economics demonstration cottage with equipment. This is the only building allowed for W. T., but this building has been sought for a number of years in order to strengthen the Home Economics department. A grant-loan was sought last year under WPA for this building, but when the bids were opened they were in excess of the amount allowed by WPA for the project.

Plans will be drawn for the new building in the near future so that construction may start at an early date.

Salaries for the institution were restored by the legislature, wiping out the reduction which was made four years ago when the depression was in its height.

Five positions were taken from the local fund and will be paid by state appropriation under the bill. The total for salaries amounts to $196,765 each year. This amount includes $20,000 for summer school for each year.

$34,656.88 was included in the bill each year for maintenance and equipment.

Governor Allred writes The News that it was with great pleasure that he approved the educational bill. "It would be false economy to fail to grant this appropriation for every increased investment in the training of our boys and girls will result in richer dividends for the State," says the Governor.

D. N. Blanton Was Seriously Injured Yesterday p. m.

D. N. Blanton, 69, was seriously injured late yesterday afternoon on the highway north of Canyon when his car collided with an Amarillo car. Ralph Guriger, who worked for Blanton, was also seriously injured. The two were driving south when their car collided with one driven by E. F. Hadley of Amarillo.

Blanton and Kuriger are both in an Amarillo hospital. Both are badly cut on their heads, and it was feared that the latter had a fractured skull and broken jaw.

Mr. Blanton has been a prominent Randall county farmer for many years.

Three men with Hadley were cut and bruised.

Mrs. R. M. Cole of Chicago is here visiting her mother, Mrs. J. D. Gamble. Mrs. Cole will be remembered as Miss Wilma Gamble.

Water Conservation Looks Favorable

Lieut. Governor Walter Woodul of Houston and Senator and Mrs. Clint Small were here Sunday on a short visit. They were shown the improvements now under progress on the campus and were taken on a trip to the Palo Duro State Park.

Senator Small has been in close touch with all phases of development on the campus and at the Park.

Governor Woodul was making his first visit to the Park and expressed great pleasure in visiting this scenic wonder of the Palo Duro.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Warwick and Dorothy accompanied the visitors on the visit.

Geologists Making Study of Water Supply at Palo Duro

Geologists from the National Park Service in Washington have spent the past week at the Palo Duro State Park making a study of the water supply in the Park. Two representatives from the office of the Board of Water Engineers in Austin arrived Monday to continue the study which was started recently by A. H. Dunlap.

Supt. Wm. Anderson states that his force has been assisting with the view of finding the source of the underground stream which has been located at crossing No. 1. It is at this point that Mr. Anderson hopes to locate the proposed swimming pool which will add much to the attractiveness of the Park.

The heavy rains of last week did so much damage to the crossings that cars have not been allowed beyond No. 2.

New Citizen In Canyon Talks To Rotary Members

Rev. Clarence N. Wiley was the speaker at the Rotary luncheon Tuesday. He was introduced by Rev. Chas. L. Dickey. Mr. Wiley came to Canyon last week to take the place of Rev. W. H. Bessire in the mission field of the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Wiley gave his first impressions of Canyon: That it was a good place to live and make a home; that its citizens should be proud of its paved streets, good schools, and the college; that there was a noticeable absence of evils which demoralize citizens, especially liquor. Mr. Wiley expressed a desire to take his place as a citizen of the community, although his work would take him away from home much of the time.

Mr. Wiley talked on "service," the motto of Rotary, and applied it to every day living. The principle was sound because it came from the Bible. He warned Rotarians that in accepting the principle they should not fail to give credit to its source.

Visitors present were: N. S. Griggs, Horace Griggs, W. S. Norman, Hermon Pipkin, all of Amarillo; Bill Kerr of Tucumcari; J. W. Shanklin of Houston; Rev. J. R. Sharp, and Rev. Clarence Wiley, both of Canyon.

Mrs. C. C. Cain has returned to Kansas City after visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. O. L. Coleman.

Hiway Department Approved Money for Highway Widening

Money is now available to continue widening 23rd Street through Canyon, which is Highway No. 9. E. H. Gohmert has received this information from the division office that work will start soon.

The plan calls for widening No. 9 from the viaduct to Fourth Avenue, making the pavement 50 feet wide. From Fourth south to the city limits the pavement will be 32 feet wide.

The caliche base north of the viaduct will be topped.

Widening the two bridges north of Canyon is provided for under a different appropriation, and is proceeding as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Gohmert and his engineering staff are in charge of the widening projects, and WPA will furnish the labor.

Sidewalk South of New Postoffice Is Given Authority

A new sidewaly along the south side of the new postoffice will be put in at once by the contractors, according to instructions received from Washington. For some reason this walk was not included in the original plans for the building, and it was not until a few weeks ago that this fact was called to the attention of Congressman Marvin Jones.

The contractors made a price to the federal authorities and this was accepted.

The city has finished widening the street south of the building, and will complete the widening on the east side of the postoffice site.

Work Sheets Are Being Sent Daily to the State Board

Worksheets under the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program are being shipped daily to the State Board at College Station from the office of County Agent W. H. Upchurch. 100 worksheets are being sent daily, and within a short time all of the 909 which are signed up will be in the hands of the State Board.

Mr. Upchurch sent 100 worksheets to the State Board recently as a test of the manner in which the sheets were being compiled. While at College Station two weeks ago, Mr. Upchurch received approval of the test sheets and was instructed to forward the balance of the worksheets from Randall county.

Alberta Brown Struck By Auto

Little Alberta Brown, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brown, was injured when she was struck by an auto as she was crossing the street at the southeast corner of the square early Tuesday evening.

Alberta sustained a fractured foot and leg. F. A. Farr was driving the car.

Miss Dorothy Fay Rusk has returned home from Pharr where she taught last year.

Engineers Will Make Reports on Favored Places

Planning Board Is Named to Carry on Work in Randall, Appointed By Commissioners Court

WARREN IN REPORT

Carl Hinton, Manager Of Organization, Believes That Washington Is Favorable To Plan

W. A. Warren, vice-president of the Water Conservation Authority met with the Commissioners Court and a number of citizens Friday afternoon in explaining the plans which had been adopted by the organization. Members of a planning board for the county had been recommended for each county in the area designated by law in order to make sure that all logical locations for dams and lakes were presented at the proper time.

After hearing the plan as developed by the conservation body, the commissioners voted to appoint members of the planning board. These were named as follows: S. H. Condron, Clyde Warwick, Ross Craig, Louis Wieck and James E. Park.

Mr. Warren stated that while John McCarty and Carl Hinton reported that a favorable impression had been made in Washington, nothing was certain as to the future of water conservation until the money was available. Congress might pass an appropriation, or might not, depending upon development.

It was assured that federal engineers would look over projects in the 32 counties comprising the conservation area, but no one would likely know whether or not a favorable report had been made until definite action was taken in Washington on the money bill.

The plan of the conservation group is to build dams and lakes, starting its work where the range and farm program leave off.

The proposed Buffalo Dam south of Umbarger was adopted as the first big project when the conservation group held its first meeting in Amarillo several months ago. The report of the engineers would determine the feasibility of this projcet.

Congressman Marvin Jones is in thorough accord with the program of conservation, and is making a supreme effort to secure the necessary appropriation for work in the Panhandle. If he is successful, it is planned that WPA build dams and lakes under the direction of federal engineers.

Mr. Warren stated that while the members of his board of directors felt highly encouraged over the work that had been done, Carl Hinton had advised that none of the citizens of this territory take anything for granted until congress had acted, and the engineers had made their report on the various projects.

New Dam At Palo Duro Club to Replace the One Lost

D. Mack Stewart, manager of the Palo Duro Club, states that plans are being made to replace the dam which was washed out recently by the floods. Work was in progress to strengthen the dam when the flood hit, doing a large amount of damage.

The dam is a few miles northeast of Canyon on the Palo Duro below the junction of this creek and the Tierra Blanca. The lake formed by the dam was filled with fish, and was noted as being one of the best fishing places in West Texas. Most of the stock in the club is owned by Amarillo citizens.

The hazards of building a dam that will hold have been increased by the rapid erosion of the Palo Duro, which has rapidly widened and deepened the creek channel.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bridges of Brownfield spent the week end at the I. W. Scott home. They were on their way home from Alaska where they visited their daughter.

DRIVE ON GAMBLING

It looks like Texas was in for a drive on gambling of all forms.

The legislature last week passed the bill outlawing legalized gambling on horse racing. The bill does not prohibit racing the ponies, but it prohibits legalized betting on races. Therefore, it is expected that all forms of racing will stop since it is said to be impossible to make racing pay unless the customers are permitted to back their judgment with cash. So well, and good.

A bill to outlaw bookies passed the Senate last week by a unanimous vote. The House will no doubt pass this bill early this week—with chances that it will become a law even before this is printed. The legislature recognizes the fact that the bookie is by far the greater evil. The bookie operates on races all over the nation, while the pari-mutual involves only those attending the actual race.

Dog races and other forms of public gambling will immediately follow. The legislature is in the frame of mind to put its stamp of disapproval upon all forms of gambling.

The Court of Criminal Appeals came to the aid of the legislature last week in upholding the general law on gambling. While the particular ruling involved a case on "bank night," the decision is far reaching and will stop all forms of public drawings.

The public has been conscious of the fact that these drawings were illegal, since the United States postal authorities outlawed public drawings as lottery years ago, and prohibited the use of mails to all sorts of enterprises.

A bill that was pending in the legislature to outlaw bank nights will likely now be dropped since the Court of Criminal Appeals is the highest court in Texas on this subject.

Whether public drawings are really harmful, where those who participate are not out actual cash in order to participate, may be a debated question on public morals. The good or the evil of these events will likely find plenty of adherents.

So far as merchants are concerned, the state is going to force business houses to sell their merchandise upon merit rather than upon a basis of giving something away. If business houses which have been giving money and merchandise away will use this money on additional newspaper advertising they will find the results much more profitable than under the old system of giving something away.

In the meanwhile, gambling will continue in various forms. Football fans will continue to bet large amounts; baseball fans will continue betting; bridge prizes will still be offered, and bets placed on bridge games; poker will continue to be a favorite pastime of many. While public phases of gambling may be eliminated through the strict bills which are before the legislature, private gambling will still continue as it has done during the past years. The American people like to gamble. The chief argument in favor of present reform is that the State of Texas cannot afford to place its stamp of approval upon any phases of gambling.

The Claude News asks us to explain why Senator Clint Small fought the race horse gambling repeal bill. Not being the guardian angel of Senator Small, we shall let the Senator explain his votes. Incidentally, on the only direct vote ever taken in the Senate on repeal, Senator Small voted in favor of repealing the measure. This was in keeping with his vote against legalizing race horse gambling when it was attached to an appropriation bill several years ago. Personally, we believe Senator Small did a very good job of explaining his attitude in the Senate when he denounced the Governor for putting up this bill when the whole catagory of bookies, dog racing, and other forms of gambling could have been covered in one bill. Such a bill would have passed much more easily than did the single shot race horse bill, and at half the expense to the state. The insinuating remarks of the Claude newspaper regarding Senator Small is the price that a capable man pays who serves his state.

Governor Allred boosted his veto record to a higher percentage when he blue penciled the soil conservation bill. Perhaps the bill was not perfect, but it was better to get conservation underway in Texas, and then cure defects in the set-up than to never make a start. The natural resources of the nation have been dissipated through gross carelessness or ignorance on the part of the people. Soil is the greatest natural resource, and it is being wasted to the extent of billions of dollars annually. The waste of soil will take scores of years to rebuild that which has been allowed to wash and blow away. The next session of the legislature will pass another soil conservation blil. The farmers of Texas are demanding that protection be extended to them. It is only a very short sighted policy of the state when some form of soil conservation is not made effective.

President Roosevelt is after the tax dodgers. J. P. Morgan defends those who are smart enough to evade paying federal taxes. Morgan places the blame upon the inability of the tax collectors to find all of the taxes which should be assessed. Maybe so. But American ideals are built upon the honesty of the public with the government. Americans do not like to see their government in the role of a dictator, or a keyhole policeman. Honesty on the part of the people with the government would eliminate much of the difficulties that exists between the two. No one likes to pay unequal taxes. Everyone should be willing to pay his just part for the support of his government and the protection of his government.

Political prediction: Coke Stevenson, twice Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, will be opposing candidates for Lieutenant Governor of Texas next year. Stevenson is the only man in many, many years who broke the usual rule of being Speaker twice. If he can be elected Lieutenant Governor and preside over the Senate, he would be the first man in Texas to achieve such an honor. Elliott Roosevelt has been very active in politics since coming here to make his home and enter business. Both are able campaigners, and a battle royal may be expected in 1938.

The labor week in the United States has rapidly declined since 1890. In that year the average work week consisted of 60 hours; in 1914 the average week was 53½ hours; in 1929 the week had declined to 49 hours; in 1937 the new low of 40 hours has reached. 100 years ago the average was 72 hours per week. The decline of working hours has brought more opportunities for recreation, making necessary more parks, playgrounds, show places, and other forms of amusement. Just how many people are using the extra hours of leisure with profit to themselves is not a matter of record.

Big news will likely break in a short while regarding water conservation in the Panhandle. Engineers from Washington have come to the Panhandle and been convinced. Publicity is not desired as to who came, what they did, or what they recommended. Congress might vote to do the wrong thing, or undo the ambitions of a people. Be that as it may, careful consideration is being given water conservation in the Panhandle. Results count. Saving the water which falls in this section is the big aim of the conservation movement.

F. W. Fischer of Tyler ran for governor last year on the platform of giving a pension to every one 65 years of age. He now says that he will run again next year favoring legalized horse race gambling in Texas. What about the old folks, Mr. Fischer? Not many of them follow the ponies? Not many of them have money with which to gamble? Why this sudden change from an interest in the old people to the followers of the race tracks?

Lieut. Governor Walter Woodul visited the Panhandle Sunday. He is the most active candidate for Attorney General in 1938. While several candidates are considering making the race, none of them compare in ability or experience with the popular Lieutenant Governor.

Love Triumphed at Long Last!

Wed at last, after long trying days that brought the abdication of a throne and a religious ceremony in defiance of the Church of England, the Duke of Windsor and his bride, the former Wallis Warfield, are shown above in this remarkable radio photo transmitted from London to the United States a few hours after their marriage in the Chateau de Cande, Monts, France. From the chateau, where they were married by a French mayor and an English pastor who acted without authorization of his church, the famous couple journeyed to Austria, where they planned a honeymoon in the ancient Wasserleonburg castle.

Lambert seeks to outplace Vanderbilt to defend the cup. The Ranger won the first 30-mile racing contest by six minutes.

It's Safety Last This Time

Pumping Skyscrapers of Water

Unmatched spectacle was this along New York's waterfront at the Battery as 29 new pieces of fire apparatus went into action, extinguishing a theoretical fire. While firemen clambered swiftly up their ladders, the giant pumps sent up a deluge along the seawall, veritable skyscrapers of water.

As Poor Chickens Succumbed To Sustained Offensive by Coaches

Athletic coaches, famous or little known, have one thing in common, Mister, when you put fried chicken in front of them, they eat it!

Thursday night at Mrs. Madsen's Dining Room in Amarillo, the instructors of West Texas State College Coaching School and enough other eaters to make the grand total an even 20 indulged in a pleasant free-for-all attack on huge platters of fowl.

Left to right and going on around the table are: Jerry Malin, Amarillo News sports writer; C. H. Jarrett, Canyon businessman; Bully Gilstrap, University of Texas; Whitey Baccus, S. M. Coaching School Ends With 216 Diplomas Presented

Instruction in the second annual West Texas State Coaching School became history Saturday afternoon when 216 high school and college student coaches received diplomas.

Representatives, ranging from mere youths to grey headed men and women coaches, from 15 states were enrolled in the school, and two university coaches from foreign countries were attendants.

Buffs Demonstrate

To aid the teachers in demonstrating their formations and plays, the burly Buffalo gridsters and towering W. T. cagers were sent through paces daily on Buffalo field and Burton Gym.

Heading the football division was "Jock" Sutherland, whose Pittsburgh Panthers, garnered the Rose Bowl crown New Year's Day. The meticulous Scot elucidated daily on his power house plays from the Warner formation by chalkboard diagrams, and then he proceeded to demonstrate them, with the aid of the Buffalo gridsters, on the football field.

Wide Open Game

Coach Matty Bell, the personality of the Southern Methodist Mustangs and the only Southwest Conference mentor to contend for the Rose Bowl title, expounded on the increasing value of the wide-open game in modern day football. "To attract crowds for football games today, there must be sensational and scintillating plays," contended the amiable Mustang Coach. "Grid fans no longer are satisfied with only power plays," he added.

Leahy Discusses Line

Frank Leahy, from Fordham University, illustrated the Notre Dame system of line play as he has used it in coaching his forward walls at the New York school since 1933. He gave chalkboard discussions in the gym and then demonstrated them on the football field.

From Texas University came the youthful but successful mentor, Blair Cherry, who was coach of the Amarillo Golden Sandies, when they rose to clamp three successive state school boy championships. Cherry elucidated on both the single and double wing back formations and gave demonstrations on the football field daily.

Heading basketball instruction was Jimmy St. Clair, of Southern Methodist University, who piloted his hoopsters to a Southwestern Conference title this year. The particular and sage mentor gave lectures and demonstrations of basketball as he has instructed it in his 13 years experience as cage mentor at S. M. U. Aiding St. Clair was Whitey Baccus, basketball and football star of the Mustangs this year, who has been selected to coach at S. M. U. next year.

Taylor Entertains

"Chuck" Taylor, often termed the "Ambassador of Basketball," illustrated his trick passes and shots, aided by "Sparky" Wade, Taylor entertained the crowd with a floor show. The trick pass and shot artist, who is not a stickler for defininte forms in teaching novices in the game, asserted that "Boys will take more interest in basketball when they are given a free reign to develop their own tactics and not be held to certain methods of activity."

DaGrosa Humorous

The affable and fluent conversationalist, Dr. Harry A. Scott, director of physical education at the Rice Institute and professor in the school of physical education at Columbia University each summer, lectured upon the value of well organized and definitely scheduled exercise in schools. Dr. Scott maintained that violent exercise, such as football and basketball, impair the health of boys and girls under 16 years of age.

One of the last of the extended list of instructors to be acquired for the school, was John "Ox" DaGrosa, stocky coach of the Philadelphia Eagles and President of the American Football institute, who mixed humor and football tactics to become one of the school's most popular pedagogues.

Enrollment Increasing In Palo Duro Art School

By Mrs. T. V. Reeves

The Palo Duro School of Art, situated in one of the most picturesque spots of the Panhandle, is attracting more students and visitors each day. Opened for its second year's session on June 2, in the midst of a down pour of rain, the colony has increased in size almost daily until now 37 pupils from Texas and surrounding states are engaged in the many types of work which are offered.

The School which is an enterprice of the College is directed by Miss Isabel Robinson, Head of the Art Department, but draws its staff from many sections of the state. Working in water colors, oilss, and crafts, the artists are busy from the time the first rays of the morning sun light up the canyon's rim until the colors of the sunset fade out across the plains.

Under the direction of Gene Brock of Houston the possibilities of Palo Duro clay for modeling are being discovered. A kiln is being constructed in which to fire the pottery which is being shaped by the skilful amateurs. Other crafts include working in silver, copper, leather, wood carving and marionettes.

The tiny village in which the artists live might well be called "Cleanville" so neat are its cobblestone streets and its green and white sturdily constructed tent houses. Nearby showers and a community kitchen assure comfort to the residents of the 25 tent houses.

There is nothing arty about the appetites of the young painters and craftsmen. Do they eat! The kitchen is in charge of Mrs. N. A. Croson of Canyon, and arrangements can be made for visiting parties to share in the good meals which are served in Coronado Lodge. Here beauty and food are combined. For through huge plate glass windows incomparable views of miles of Palo Duro Canyon are to be seen. 800 feet below the lodge is the shining ribbon of Prairie Dog Fork of the Great Red River.

Scenic views are not the only assets of the Art Colony. Along the cliffs above the village and in the cedar trees below it are hundreds of birds, and their morning and evening concerts with the mocking birds playing the parts of any and all of the other bird citizens are a part of the day's delights.

Members of the colony also find recreation in horseback riding, long hikes along the trails of Palo Duro State Park, and in lectures which are brought to them several nights each week. During the latter weeks of the Art Colony, which closes in the middle of July, Frances O'Brien Garfield, intimate friend and protege of the great Georgia O'Keeffe, will be artist in residence. She is looking forward to the occasion which will be her first visit to Northwest Texas. The 1937 Art Colony will close its work with an art pilgrimage to Santa Fe and Taos, New Mexico. The tour will be conducted by Miss Isabel Robinson and will last almost a week.

TVA Plan for the Nation Envisions Ambitious Program of New Deal

OUT of the New Deal's experiment with the TVA in the south has come a presidential proposal for a series of seven identical "authorities" which would control the great river valleys of the nation from coast to coast. Therein lies one of the most ambitious projects of the administration.

Conservation of natural resources, development of navigation, flood control and electric power throughout the country are the chief aims of this program. They are, of course, the vehicle for the President's general power policy which holds "that the waterpower resources of the nation must be protected from private monopoly and used for the benefit of the people."

Under bills now before Congress, introduced by Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska, the country would be divided into seven major regions to initiate this program and an eighth, the Mississippi valley, would be administered as at present by the Mississippi river commission.

* * *

STARTING in the east, this would be the picture, as the map would be divided to attain the aims of the program:

1—An Atlantic seaboard authority, covering the drainage basins of all rivers flowing into the Atlantic from the east.

2—A Great Lakes-Ohio valley authority.

3—The Tennessee valley authority, expanded to cover territory south to the Gulf coast.

4—The Missouri valley authority, sweeping far into the west.

5—The Arkansas valley authority and down to Rio Grande.

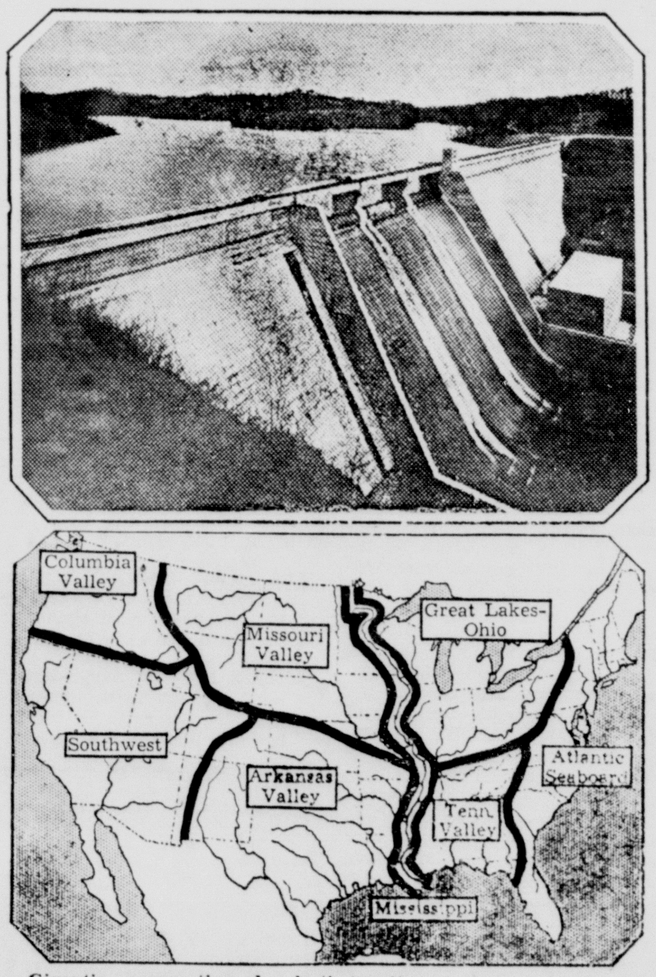
6—The Southwest authority for the Great basin and the lower Pacific coast.

7—The Columbia valley authority.

8—The Mississippi valley authority, dealing with the channel itself.

The time has come, the President points out, "when we must act . . . if we would preserve for ourselves and our posterity the natural resources of a virile national life." Accordingly, he urges the setting up of these regional authorities, suggesting that they first make surveys of the needs of the nation and then formulate definite programs.

Thus, over a long term, the country would arm itself against dust storms, floods, drouths, and at the same time develop navigation and huge power resources across the continent.



Gigantic conservation plan is that indicated above. At the top is the Norris dam, key structure in the Tennessee valley authority. And below, how the nation would be divided in this plan under bills now before Congress.

IT is this question of power which will doubtless come to the front first in the program. It is the New Deal doctrine that the lowest possible rates to the ultimate consumer, especially to the consumer on the farm and in the home, will give electrical industries the biggest boom in history. At the same time, power companies see in this program a threat to their profits and expansion.

The TVA, of course, is already in the power business. Here will be formulated the yardstick for this type of experiment. And if it works, then the nation may eventually see the plan carried to every state providing present bills are enacted.

The whole picture then, as yet indefinite and extremely flexible as to detail, envisions a nation ultimately secure as to its vast natural resources; a nation which utilizes its power possibilities to the fullest and substitutes long term national planning for part policies.

Contouring Needed to Hold Results of Recent Good Rains

Farmers who may hold the opinion that normal moisture eliminates the need for soil and moisture conservation farming practices are making a serious mistake, according to H. H. Finnell, Regional Conservator of the Soil Conservation Service in Region Six, which includes the wind erosion area of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico and Colorado.

"Almost the opposite is true," Finnell warns, "because it is in the periods of extreme drouth that we find the greatest difficulty in making vegetation and trees grow which are necessary to protect permanently the soil from blowing. This also applies to filling stock water ponds located so as to provide a more equal distribution of grazing, and to obtain the best results from other conservation practices.

"When we get a good amount of moisture, such as we have over most of the wind erosion region now, we are able to see more clearly what is happening to the soil and water. An abundance of moisture can be observed in many sections of the region now, but one noticeable thing is outstanding.

"The slopes of fields cultivated in straight rows, that is, up and down the hills instead of around the slopes on the level, are moist, but dry out rapidly. The water that should have been held on the slopes are distributed there for the soil and crops has been allowed to run off into wet weather lakes, roadside ditches and streams where it is of no value to crops, and of decreasing value to livestock or wildlife."

In the project and camp areas of the Southern Great Plains region, 183,803 acres are now being contour tilled, as follows: Texas, 147,063 acres; Oklahoma, 7,761; New Mexico, 5,872; Colorado, 12,160; and Kansas, 10,947.

"Moisture alone is not enough to halt the dust storms," Finnell points out. "Even with normal moisture, this is true, because we also have normal wind—drying wind—and with it a certain amount of evaporation. If the water is allowed to run off the fields and pastures, it is not available for the crops and grasses that are needed to protect the soil from the ravages of wind erosion.

"The water must go into the soil if it is to be of the most use. The fields and pastures must have the proper treatment and care to get the moisture into the soil. Vegetation is all important, so our farming practices must be aimed at keeping vegetation on the land as much of the year as possible. Proper practices such as terracing, contour cultivation, pasture furrowing, strip cropping and tree plantings all play their part in the soil conservation program.

"If we can conserve the major part of the moisture received at the point where it falls, we soon may have the vegetative cover required to hold the soil and prevent the wind erosion that is plaguing the country with dust storms," Finnell believes.
